'Trojan Corpse to Fool Soviet People'Dulles Charges Stalin
'Fall Guy' for Russ Sins

Moscow's sudden distaste for the Stalin regime is nothing more than a political gimmick by which the present dictators of Russia propose to employ the Stalin corpse as a fall guy to explain away past Soviet sins and misdeeds.

This explanation of the recent switch in Soviet policy was offered by Allen W. Dulles, director of the United States Central Intelligence Agency, who spoke before 600 members and guests of the Los Angeles World Affairs Council last night at the Statler.

"Soviet leaders are trying to meet their external and internal dilemmas by finding a convenient 'devil' which they can use to explain away past Soviet sins to the world and to their people," the younger brother of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles declared.

A dead and dishonored Stalin is likely to be a mere device—possibly a Trojan corpse rather than a Trojan horse—with which the long-suffering Russian people are to be deceived in their expectation of a freer and better life."

But the younger Dulles said there will be no genuine change in the Russian communist policy.

By attacking the personal symbol of Stalin, and the worst excesses of his rule, they hope to be able to preserve many of the essentials of the Stalinist system, now labeling it Leninism," he declared.

"They will keep in effect the monopoly of all power by a single party, the complete subordination of the courts and individual rights to arbitrary party decree, the government control of the press and all organs of public information."
